Other important items

- Base layers
  - Dress as if you are going skiing or out in the snow for a while
  - Sweatshirts and sweatpants won't keep you nearly as warm as insulated base layers will. You can find these at Gap/Old Navy, L.L. Bean, and even Marshalls.
  - Wool socks will definitely keep your feet warmer than cotton socks
- Hat
  - Early in the season you will want a knit hat that will keep your head warm
  - As the weather improves a baseball cap or visor is fine
- Dish Gloves and/or plastic bags
  - OK, this sounds strange, but even the winter sailing gloves will let some water through. Wear these over/under your sailing gloves to stay dry and warm
  - Plastic bags will do the same thing for your feet and make it easier to put your boots on over your drysuit
- Sun Glasses
  - Just because it is winter, doesn't mean the sun isn't bright
  - Polarized lenses are not mandatory, but protect your eyes better and help you see the wind effects on the water more clearly
- Sneakers
  - Conditioning is a big part of sailing... this is a sports team!
  - Even if we can't go out on the water we can still train so have your sneakers with you, especially on Saturday mornings
